Data showed the busiest times were Halloween, Saint Patrick’s Day and the start of school. It showed a 30% decrease in calls and a 30% increase in citations over the period of time. She stated that they will use the data to analyze current practices and make necessary changes. Captain Staley added that changes with deployment of all officers on the busy days will continue for next year. Question was raised about what percentage of the data is a Cal Poly student verses others. She stated that the Civility Group will look at the data and analyze trends. Discussion continued with student behavior and members stated that the message to students needs to change to be more positive language, change expectations, start education with parents and change staff roles. It was stated that antidotes and stories drive emotion in not so positive ways with both students and community. Focusing on the data is critical and not focusing on old stories.
